SHAMROCK SIGN DEMOLISHED IN EARLY MORNING ACCIDENT

A two car collision early Sunday morning on Main St., in front of the Shamrock Drive In resulted in severe damage to one of the vehicles and total loss to the large electric Schlitz sign at the highway edge of the Drive In parking lot.

According to police reports a Chevrolet truck driven by Daniel O'Connell Jr. of Tewksbury struck the sign as Mr. O'Connell attempted to avoid colliding with a car operated by William Keough of Wilmington. Keough was emerging from the parking lot adjacent to Rocco's Restaurant, opposite the Shamrock Drive In.

Harold Foley, manager of the Drive In has informed the Schlitz Brewing Co., owners of the sign of the accident. Loss in damages to the sign is estimated to be in the neighborhood of $800.00.

The accident occurred at approximately 2:00 a.m. on Sunday morning. Sergeant Sidelinker investigated.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE STILL GOING ON

Pearl Hersom, chairman of the Salvation Army Drive has announced that due to the fact that there are sections of town which have not been covered, the drive will be continued, for at least the first two weeks in June.

LATEST BULLETIN ON DOG STORY

Last week in this paper, there appeared an article telling of the injury a dog received on lower Woburn St., while enroute to the corner store with his young owners.

To any interested people we type the next lines: The dog spent some time in a local hospital last week (animal hospital of course). After a short period of confinement, it was determined necessary to amputate his front paw. A great decision had to be made. Would "Tip" be better off if he were put to sleep, or would he and his owners enjoy life just as much if he had only three legs? Well, the strangest sight on lower Woburn St. for some time can be seen there now, a three legged dog sporting a large bandage.

It has been said that in no time at all, "Tip" will be maneuvering just as well on three legs as he did on four. Happy children, happy dog, but wow, that hospital bill!

BROOKSIDE KINDERGARTEN TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

The Brookside Kindergarten on 403 Woburn St. will hold open house on June 11, between the hours of 2 and 4 p.m. At this time the teachers, Nancy Rice and Ruth McCabe, will greet the parents of the children who are interested in registering for next fall.

WILDWOOD CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

On Monday evening, May 28, members of the Wildwood Club held their regular meeting at the Wildwood School with President, Mrs. LaRivee presiding. Under old business, a record player which had been purchased by the club, was presented to the school.

New officers for the year Mrs. Frances Cleveland, Publicity Agent; Mrs. Boudreau, Treasurer; Mrs. Varley, Secretary; Mrs. Kelley and Program Chairman, Pearl Hersom.

The next meeting will be held on the last Monday of September.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION NEWS

In keeping with its new policy of visiting the individual schools for play days the Physical Education department has outlined the following schedule of events. On Wednesday, June 6, the boys and girls of the Mildred Rogers school will combine a play day and festival at that school to be held in the afternoon at 1 o'clock. On June 12, a similar program will be held at the Whitefield school to start at the same time. On June 13, the West School will hold a picnic type of program at which time the children will demonstrate and play games as offered in the regular curriculum. On Thursday afternoon at the Walker School a program will also be held starting at 1 o'clock. In all these areas the event of inclement weather will force postponement to the following day.

CRUSADER REPORTER HAS NEW BABY BOY

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moore of Morse Avenue, wish to announce the arrival of a new baby boy, born Sunday, June 3, at Wintener Hospital. The new addition weighed 8.5 pounds. Mrs. Moore has been employed by the Crusader for the past seven months.

W. S. C. S. MAKING PLANS FOR THE COMING YEAR

Members of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist church have been busy formulating their plans for the coming year. It has been announced that the following events will take place.

The Harvest Supper will be held on October 25. The annual fair will be conducted on December 5 and 6.

A series of missionary meetings is being planned in charge of Mrs. Barbara Dayton. These meetings will be on October 17, 24, 31 and November 7, 10, and 12 at the church.

RECREATION NEWS

At a recent meeting of the Recreation Commission held at the home of Chairman Mrs. Mae Bliss plans were outlined for the summer programs. It was made known that the Planning Board is making definite progress in making the Silver Lake Beach an attractive recreation center by adding 5 or 6 picnic tables, two special floats, planting of trees, purchasing a new lifeboat, and installing new life-lines for the protection of all swimmers. Other plans included the areas to be used for the playground activities, which will be held daily starting on June 28, and extending through the summer weeks until the middle of August. The Common will be used for boys only and will be under the direction of Mr. Hastings and Mr. Gilligan who will organize a boys pony league and other individual and team games for boys between the ages of 10 to 15 inclusive during the morning sessions; and for boys from all ages during the afternoon sessions. It is hoped that the use of the old North School will be possible in order to hold morning classes in that area. The Mildred Rogers Wildwood School, and High School areas are expected to operate as usual. Further complete information regarding the ages and the areas to be cared for will be forthcoming as soon as definite scheduling is possible. Meanwhile the adult softball league is in full swing on the Common during the evenings. Any person interested should contact one of the managers.

D.A.V. AND AUXILIARY TO INSTALL

Members of the D.A.V. and the auxiliary will conduct an installation of new officers on or about June 29. The exact date will be announced later, as plans are not fully formulated.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING TAKES ONLY 29 MINUTES.

The Herbert C. Barrows Auditorium was filled to capacity last Friday evening for the June 1 special town meeting. We checked with authorities and were told that this was the most heavily attended special meeting in Wilmington's history.

All three articles were approved unanimously and to our knowledge, this is another first for Wilmington. This huge, expensive facility was voted in without so much as a question on the part of the people.

Article one, concerning the rezoning of the land between Lowell and Main Sts., was passed in just fifteen minutes. Preliminary sketches will be started on June 8 and ground should be broken for the buildings on or about July 1. Robert Ryan, of Cabot, Cabot and Forbes, the firm hired by Avco to locate the most desirable site, stated that the plant would employ more than 1000 as it begins operations late in 1957.

Mr. Ryan was introduced by Mr. Courtney. He made every effort to bring home to the people the best that this plant would do research and development work rather than actual manufacturing by producing for sale. He stated that it would be a quiet, college like facility and would be entirely taxable. He further stated that locating the site for Avco was done with several definite factors in mind; this local is close to M.I.T. and Harvard; near the Bedford Airport and it is near Rt. 128.

CHARLES GIBBONS REPUBLICAN FLOOR LEADER TO SPEAK AT YOUNG REPUBLICAN CLUB

Charles Gibbons, Republican floor-leader of the Massachusetts house of Representatives, will speak Monday evening, June 11, to the young Republican Club of Wilmington. The meeting, which is open to the public, will be held in the East Wilmington Improvement Association Hall, on route 129, and will begin at 8 p.m.

Mr. Gibbons who has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination of the office of Lt. Governor, is a state Representative of Stoneham. He also was a former Stoneham Selectman and moderator. He has been in the legislature for some years, both as Majority leader, and minority leader in the House, and has held a wide Legislative Experience.

Mr. Ryan also stated that one of the greatest determining factors causing Avco to choose Wilmington when many towns all over New England, were clamoring for their attention, was that Wilmington seemed to be very nicely "under control". He liked the manner in which our school system is advancing.

Having lived in Wilmington for most of our lives, we were pleased to hear Mr. Ryan intimate that the Avco plant was willing to invest $5,000,000 here "because they like the town and the way it has been run and is now being run".

The last two articles were passed unanimously within the remaining fourteen minutes. The sum of $5000, was voted to be raised by taxation, for the drawing of plans for a new elementary school in the vicinity of Glen Rd. A sum of $2100, to be added to an equal grant by the federal govt., was appropriated to be used to help clear up traffic conditions in the square.

The meeting was closed with a standing ovation for all the town officials who made it possible for Wilmington to welcome Avco.

FIRST NATIONAL STORES HAVE "MIRACLE ON MAIN STREET"

A Wilmington man had a hand in what Stoneham residents have called a "Miracle on Main street" - the remodeling and enlargement of the Stoneham First National supermarket while customers wheeled shopping carriages and did their food buying as usual. The store was closed Monday and Tuesday this week for last minute changes; re-opened Wednesday morning.

H. Oliver Newcomb of 42 Columbia street, Wilmington and a member of First National's traveling staff of carpenters, was carpenter foreman on the job. The firm's carpenters equip and finish the interior of new stores throughout New England and repair, remodel and enlarge old ones. They drive home week-ends from wherever they are working.

Formerly a builder in Wilmington, Newcomb joined the First National carpenter staff eight years ago. He spent nine weeks at Stoneham. The store was enlarged, redecorated and various departments relocated. The Company's carpentry shop and sheet metal shop sent fixtures and equipment to the store knocked down, ready to assemble. Newcomb and his men install them. They include partitions, offices, display shelving, walk-in refrigerators, desks, meat cutting equipment, storage racks.

Carpenter work at Stoneham was completed last Saturday. Monday Newcomb reported for work at Presque Isle, Maine.

June Newhouse, Taft road, Wilmington, is on the staff at the store. There are also Wilmington residents among part-time workers.

MOVE TO ARTIC

More men and materials moved into the Arctic Regions during 1955 than in any other year, according to the 1956 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia. The main reasons were the construction of new military installations of the maintenance and resupply of already establish ones.

CLAPP AND LEACH HAVE BIG OPENING

Big shopping news recently is the Opening of the new store at 545 Main St. next to the Reading Theatre by the owners of Clapp and Leach, Inc.

Two Reading brothers, Selectman Lawrence Drew and Raymond J. Drew reopened their electrical appliance store and electrical contracting business at the new location.

Founded in 1908, the business was purchased by the Drew brothers in 1946 and has outgrown its original location at 7 Ash St., in the ensuing ten years.

The grand opening event, was a huge success and featured a display of appliances by Amana, Norge, General Electric, Sunbeam, Motorola, Nutone and Mitchell air conditioners.

Gifts were given out included: a baby orchid to the first 300 women visiting the store; key chains and ball point pens for the men; and balloons for the children. Door prizes included various useful household and personal gifts, although there was no obligation to participate in awards.

Store-wide discounts prevailed on the 3 days of the gala opening and for those purchasing a major appliance, an easy payment plan is offered.

A novel feature is the arrangement whereby any lady depositing a 1945 quarter at the store will be entitled to a pair of nylon stockings at Loralane's store in Reading Square.

Clapp and Leach also do repairs to small appliances, radios and television sets, in addition to their extensive electric supply, contracting and fixture business.

HOME BUILDERS WORRIED OVER G.I.'S HOME BUILDING PLANS

An estimated 4.6 million potential home buyers among World War II veterans will lose their rights to GI assistance if Congress permits the VA home loan program to die next year, Donald M. Van Greenby, President of the Home Builders Association of Greater Lowell, Inc., said today.

"On the basis of Veterans Administration figures, approximately five million of the more than 14 million World War II GI's are in what is generally considered to be the home-buying age group and have not yet used their entitlements," Mr. Van Greenby noted. "This is the group of veterans in the 35 and under age bracket.

"Assuming that 400,000 exercise their rights between now and the program's expiration date of July 25, 1957, a total of 4.6 million are going to be left high and dry for the benefits which nearly 4.5 million other veterans were able, because of better circumstances, to take advantage of."

Mr. Van Greenby pointed out that NAHB and major veterans groups have recommended extension of the program to July 1960. He added that reports reaching him indicated that the Congress might let the World War II program die. The program gives veterans the opportunity to buy homes on a government-guaranteed, low down payment loan at a 4 1/2 percent interest rate.

"This would be most unfortunate," Mr. Van Greenby asserted, "because the statistical evidence prepared by the Government shows that the median age of the veteran using his entitlement has risen steadily. For instance, in 1946 the typical veteran buying a home under the program was 29 years of age; in 1955 the typical age of a veteran obtaining a VA guaranteed home loan was 33.6 years of age.

"This suggests the likelihood that a large number of those veterans in the 30-35 age group who have not yet made use of their rights would probably do so if the opportunity remained open.

"I hope that members of Congress will see the inequities inherent in the situation and will not permit the program to die at the height of its usefulness to the World War II veterans in our population.

Mr. Van Greenby said the 12-month guarantee period recently voted by the House of Representatives for contract-backed loans in process when the 1957 deadline is reached would be of little help to the vast majority of eligible World War II GI's.

NEW U. S. WEAPONS

Several atomic weapons were put into U.S. Army service last year, reports the 1956 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia. The 280 mm atomic cannon, capable of firing both atomic and conventional shells, took its place with U. S. troops overseas. The Army's "Honest John" rocket, as well as the Army's Corporal missile and the Air Force's "matador" missile, all of which can carry an atomic warhead, were sent to forces in Europe. "Honest John" also went to Japan.

COMMUTE BY HELIBUS?

You'll really live differently when helibuses arrive! Commuting 60 miles to the city by helibus will be as routine as it is to drive today, say the editors of Changing Times, The Kiplinger Magazine.

It is expected to be a real experience for some people in Chicago this year. And within ten years, 1,500,000 passengers will be carried annually and 286 helibus flights will be made daily over the 200 miles between New York and Washington.

You will catch your helibus at a "port" about 200 feet long by 400 feet wide. Inside the helibus you will find seats 30 or 40 riders. Your bus will be oblong, completely enclosed with glass, and heavily insulated to muffle the noise of the motor above. Your helibus will rise slowly, angling slightly, to 1,000 or 2,000 feet, and you will have the same sensation as going up in an elevator. In the air it will move along at a lazy speed around 100 miles per hour.

The landing will be made at the city airport, located in a clearing in midtown or on a reinforced roof top or a platform floating on a river or a lake.

Bad weather isn't likely to stop the helibus. And safety will be an advertised feature. If the engine should fail, the copter would float gently to earth because the rotor would continue to spin until the machine landed.

No matter how the operators pare it, the price of a helicopter ride, mile for mile, is more expensive today than that of an airplane ride. But operators are already reducing the cost by making the machines bigger, more efficient, more economical to operate.

Even though the helicopter can travel 100 miles per hour, it is not as fast as might be desired. Speed will have to be stepped up to compete; and the use of turbojet engines may pay off.

EXPLODE AIR SAUCERS

The Air Force Technical Intelligence at Dayton, Ohio, has exploded the "myths" of the 1956 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia. After an eight-year study, the group attributed most of the sightings to weather or other balloons, aircraft, astronomical phenomena or other natural causes. However, the study could not give a reason for about 10 per cent of the "flying saucers" seen.

Weekend crashes accounted for 15,730 killed and 766,000 hurt during 1955.

BUY THE CASE!

Well, folks, it looks like summer may show up after all. And with warmer weather in sight I'd like to suggest that you think about saving time and money by making your malt-beverage purchases by the case or half-case. And, of course, headquarters for CASE MALT BEVERAGES is none other than our old stand-by THE DRIVE-IN. Because those DRIVE-IN fellers are so well stocked, with such tremendous selections, to help you decide exactly what suits your pocket book, as well as your palate. And they're also so well situated that you can PARK-IN-PEACE and SHOP-IN-PEACE, always.

And, best of all, you gals, there's never any luggin bundles at the DRIVE-IN. Because they see to it that you get page-boy service right to your car. And that goes for returnable coke bottles and such, as well. All it takes is a toot of your horn to bring Hoppy, Scampy or someone right out to your car to juggle those unmanageable topsy-turvy bottles for you. (The boys haven't quite figured out how to get your bundles from your car to your house for you - - but, please don't ask them about this, folks - - they may jump aboard for the ride home, and you'll wind up with some unexpected company - - and we'll wind up with some of our Drive-In fellers lost, strayed or stolen!

You know, folks, it's awful hard to think of anything that those Drive-In fellers won't do to help take more of the HOP out of SHOPPING!

I sometimes think that they must lay awake nights dreaming up new ways to make your shopping easier, more inexpensive and more fun! Yes, folks, there's just no getting away from it - - shopping at the DRIVE-IN is about the only thing in the world that's easier than

 Memorial Day morning, we

Deputy Chief Hoban Leads Auxiliary Police

How proud we felt when we first sighted the deputy chief of our police dept., leading the contingent of auxiliary police which headed the parade. This is our police dept., soaking wet, but not even thinking of dropping out of line.

Our firefighters followed, soggy, but smiling. All 10 of our regulars marched lead by their chief. It made us very happy to have each of these people speak and call us by name. This could only happen in a small town.

Our town manager came next, sloshing down Wildwood St., hatless and smiling.
 "Joe" was flanked on either side by two of our male selectmen, all just as wet and smiling just as broadly. We must say here, that we were pleased with them too. They marched in the pelting rain when they could have driven over the route in a nicely heated Chrysler. They really performed their civic duty to the fullest.

Members of the Legion, D.
 A.V., V.F.W. and their auxiliaries also came marching by, just as wet. The ladies who carried the flags without so much as a top coat are certainly to be commended.

The high school band did itself up proud and the vitali-

All in all, this parade was a credit to Wilmington and to the people in it. This was Wilmington and these people are Wilmingtonites. When the chips are down for a common cause, the caliber of these people is just as high as it can go.

Where else, but in a small town, could you sit on the sidelines and be spoken to by practically everyone in the parade? Events in Wilmington over the past years, we think have proven something.
 The size of a town, does not always depend on the population, you can have small town feeling over when the population gets up to twenty thousand and over. This is Wilmington, it will grow, but it does not have to change.

The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., where the Annual Meeting of the denomination was held on Monday, June 4. The domed edifice is the Extension, dedicated in 1906. Adjoining it, with chime tower, is the Original Edifice, dedicated in 1895. The Christian Science Church was founded by Mary Baker Eddy, who discovered Christian Science in 1866 and published the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" in 1875.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE STORY

Nothing but Christ's Christianity can supply the answer to the tremendously challenging problems facing humanity, The Christian Science Board of Directors said today.

"The world needs the Science of Christianity as it has never needed it before," the Directors declared in a special statement.

Thousands of Christian Scientists from many parts of the world heard the Directors' message at the Annual Meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

Taking note of the significant changes taking place in the world, the Directors said: "With the breaking of the barriers of time and space the mental outlook of men stands out in increasingly sharp relief, revealing an unprecedented clash of ideologies. 'Materia medica' is more and more tracing physical effects to mental causes. The churches are reaching out for spiritual healing."

Application of the healing power of the Christ, Truth, demands individual consecration, the Directors emphasized.

"We need to retain the spirit of the study pioneer, to guard against apathy, superficiality, and the intoxication of ease in matter," they stated.

Their message, read by Theodore Wallach, retiring First Reader of The Mother Church, highlighted a session at which progress was reported on the far-flung activities of the denomination which now has branches in some 48 countries.

In his keynote address Clifford A. Woodard of Cambridge, Mass., Christian Science practitioner and incoming President of The Mother Church, underscored the vital role of practical Christianity today. "Humanity," he said,

"sorely needs our prayers and all the help that Christian Science can give to solve the world's troubles and problems."

"What," he added, "can melt away the evils of a 'cold war' but the warmth of affections enriched by the Word of God? What can still the ambition to rule the whole world but the realization that, as the Psalmist assures us (Ps. 62: 11), 'Power belongeth unto God,' and (Ps. 103: 19), 'His kingdom ruleth over all'?"

The audience filled three auditoriums in The Mother Church edifices and a nearby theater. Adherents traveled from every state in the union and from Europe, Asia, Australia, and many other distant points to attend.

Growing interest in spiritual healing as a result of the television and radio series "How Christian Science Heals" was reported by a number of key officials, including Roy Garrett Watson, Treasurer, and Gordon V. Comer, Clerk. Will R. Davis, Manager of Committees on Publication said: "The response has been most gratifying. We are receiving reports of increased church and lecture attendance and increased use of our free Reading Rooms."

Nearly 200 television stations in the United States and Canada have carried the filmed Christian Science TV programs, Mr. Davis reported. Radio programs in the series, he added, will continue to be broadcast by more than 800 stations throughout the world.

Healings in Christian Science of sin, disease, and other everyday problems were reported by The Christian Science Board of Lectureship in a report read by James Harry McReynolds of Dallas, Texas. Reporting for the Trustees of The Christian Science Publishing Society, John H. Hoagland, Manager, said that testimonies submitted during the year for publication in the denomination's weekly, monthly, and quarterly religious periodicals included well-documented healings of cancer, tuberculosis, paralysis, blindness, deafness, carious bones and physical deformity.

Over $250,000 a year has been expended to provide for the physical, mental, moral, and spiritual welfare of the armed forces, it was disclosed by Richard H. Chase, Manager of Christian Science Activities for the Armed Services.

A marked increase in sales of the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, was announced by the Trustees under her Will.

During the many new branches of The Mother Church were established, it was reported, including those in Miranda, Australia; Barnstable and Sidmouth, Devonshire, England; Dortmund and Trier, Germany; Helsinki, Finland; Asan Point, Guam; and Vlaarlingen, Netherlands.

MASSACHUSETTS MAN NAMED PRESIDENT

Clifford A. Woodard of Cambridge, was named President of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

Mr. Woodard's appointment was announced by The Christian Science Board of Directors at the Annual Meeting of the denomination attended by thousands of Christian Scientists from many parts of the world. The term of office is for one year.

An authorized teacher and practitioner of Christian Science, Mr. Woodard holds degrees from Harvard College, Harvard Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, and Harvard Law School.

A native of Warren, Pennsylvania, he became interested in Christian Science through a healing received as a boy. He joined The Mother Church in 1908 and has been active in various capacities in the Christian Science movement for many years.

TROOP 57, WILMINGTON BOY SCOUT NEWS

During the months of April, May, and the beginning of June, the members of Troop 57 have been quite active. In the month of April the scouts participated in the Council Calvacade of Scouting in Lowell, with an exhibit on "Knots and how to tie them". They conducted their weekly Friday night meetings, and demonstrated their camping skills by participating in the Wilmington Camporee, held at Forty Acres, and District 3 camporee held in Tewksbury. On May 30, the scouts took part in the annual parade, with Charles Sweet reciting the Gettysburg address. A paper drive was conducted to raise funds for troop equipment, and on June 2, the scouts participated in the conservation program of the troop planting pine trees at Forty Acres, provided to the camp by the Mass. Dept. of Conservation. Over 300 trees were planted by the scouts. Previous to the trip to Forty Acres, the scouts enjoyed a two hour trip up the Shawheen River. Some of the time was spent by the boys, swimming in nature's way. Four canoes were rented from the Alaska Boat Co. The following Scouts participated: Thomas Donahue, George Blaisdell, Charles Costa, Thomas Bickford, Ronald Pupa, Dennis DeLucia, David Townley, Gerald Van Steenburg, Charles Curtis Pellerin, Phillip Sweet.

The following scouts have taken part in the camping trips during the past two months. Thomas Donahue, 4; Thomas Roselli, 2; Larry Pellerin, 3; Phillip Sweet, 3; David Townley, 3; Charles Sweet, 2; Curtis Pellerin, 2; Gerald Van Steenburg, 2; George Blaisdell, 4; James Stewart, 2; Donald Hubbard, 1; Thomas Bickford, 2; James Doucette, 1; Richard MacCauley, 1; Robert Gilbert, 1; Dennis DeLucia, 1; Richard MacDonald, 1; Charles Costa, 1; William Westcott, 1; Derrick MacLean, 1; Robert Ruggolei, 1; John Steves, 1; Mr. Danny Gillis, 1; Mr. DeLucia, 1;

CONSERVATION.

YOUR RESPONSIBILITY

The U.S. Conservation Dept. in conjunction with the Boy Scouts of America have seen, and express their desire to involve the scouting program into their program. As the years go by the public is being even more careless with the natural resources of our Country than ever before. Therefore the scouts have been asked to help in putting a stop to the destruction. The conservation dept. and the Boy Scouts cannot do it alone, but it can be done with your help and co-operation. How? It's very simple. Here are several suggestions by members of Troop 57.

- 1 Before disposing of a match, be sure that it is out, then break the stick in half.
- 2 When lighting a fire make sure there is clearance of at least ten feet around it, that no branches are hanging over the fire. Keep a water supply handy at all times.
- 3 When driving in a car, do not throw Cigarette butts out of the windows. Put them in your ash tray, that's what there for.

Do not light fires, with out permission or on windy days.

5 Do not go around marking up trees, or cutting down those that are not necessary.

6 Clean out the brooks around your home, to keep the water flowing freely, so that the water will not flood, causing a small swamp, which will lead to erosion.

7 Clear away brush and dead wood from good trees.

8 Do not clutter up our highways and roads with trash.

9 Do not kill wild life for the fun of it, just for survival.

10 If by accident you may hit one, stop, and dispose of it properly. Do not leave it around to collect diseases, and have them spread.

11 Plant small shrubbery, a long river and brook banks, to stop erosion.

12 Either cement or paint trees that have been injured.

Chapter IV.

This remark struck Uncle Rip's mind as he stood with his hands in his pocket looking out of the window. Things had certainly been "fixed" and as he noted the gold braid on the cap and sleeves of the portly gentleman who was getting out of an automobile which had just stopped in front of the Batchelder's door, the fact that ten years had elapsed between the remark and the event towards which it pointed did not make it seem any less sinister.

"Ketcham has arrived," he said over his shoulder.

Auntie Dill sniffed.

"What can he do? He never yet caught a real crook in his life."

Uncle Rip nodded.

"Want of practice, probably. But here's a chance for him to get some real experience - if I'm any judge of the matter."

"But who could possibly have any motive for murdering Ed Batchelder - unless it was Pete."

"I don't know of a soul," said Uncle Rip gravely, "and apparently Pete didn't do it - so there's your mystery."

Auntie Dill came and stood by his side.

"Are those the State police?" she asked as two motor cycles owners disappeared through the front door, which Chief Ketcham had left open.

"Evidently; - and here come two of the selectmen," as a second car drove up. "Ed is having more callers this morning than he ever had in his lifetime."

The remark did not by any means imply social ostracism, for in Barnsdale calling was almost entirely confined to the women, and even here it was not very prevalent. Two bachelors who had no use for the sisterhood were apt to be left pretty much to themselves, which was just about the degree of sociability to be found in Barnsdale anyway. But in the common meeting places to which their daily needs and whatever social instincts they possessed took them - the church, the grange, the post office, and the local grocery store - Ed Batchelder was favorably spoken of by those not given to scandal. He was looked upon as a harmless individual who, whatever his fraternal relations might be, always had a pleasant greeting for his neighbors; and one incident he figured in had made him famous.

In the course of his domestic economies (which were numerous) Ed had picked up a horse condemned by the authorities as unfit for use and sentenced to be shot. Starved, abused, harness-galled, and suffering from laminitis, the had been turned over to him for a five dollar bill on his assurance that he would give it a good home and restore it to health. He was as good as his word. A summer at pasture supplemented by the run of the corn field after the frost came, healed the painful sores, filled out the gaping ribs, eased the fever in the shuffling feet, and evolved a very different animal from the sad-eyed wreck he had acquired in the Spring. Ed used him in a light delivery wagon until the season was over and then, faced with the prospect of feeding his renovated patient in idleness through the winter, put up a sign at the front gate; "HORSE FOR SALE."

One day a stranger who was driving by saw the sign and stopped. Ed greeted him genially, but with modest reserve, and led the way to the barn.

"How much do you want for him?" asked the visitor, after looking the beast over and subjecting him to certain tests which showed him to be no novice at the trade.

"Two hundred and fifty dollars," replied Ed, promptly.

The stranger glanced at him contemptuously.

"I give you fifty."

"Well," quavered Ed, furiously feeling of his pluse, "it's a hell of a come down - but I'm going to let you have him!"

In the chuckling notoriety which the story brought him Ed found some solace for the loss of his higher figure. He was not a miser, but his native thriftiness made him always eager to earn a penny and secretive about the extent of his resources, concerning which there was a wide range of speculation, although those who declared he had enough to keep him in comfort for the rest of his days were very close to the mark.

He and Pete held the farm as tenants in common. Ed used twenty acres of the tillable soil for his garden, and let Pete have the run of the barn and a ten acre pasture. Ed never touched the cows, of which there were six, and had no use for the hens - he "never et nothin' with feathers on it."

Drawn by natural curiosity and the thought that probably the investigators would want to interview him, Uncle Rip again walked over to the Batchelder house. He passed Sally on the way, who was herding Sonny back to the cottage.

"This kid is getting scared," she said. "He thinks the policemen are going to pinch him."

Excited voices drew him to the upper hall when he entered the front door. As the only two people on the premises when the crime occurred, Selena and Hildreth were being pretty sharply questioned by the police. The State troopers appeared to be suspicious of them, but Chief Ketcham, who knew the pair better, was mildly tolerant in his attitude, and his views seemed to be shared by the two selectmen.

"This man has evidently been shot, and you say nobody could have got into the house to do it - the windows haven't been disturbed and the front door was locked," said Sergeant O'Brien, turning to Hildreth. "Have you any explanation to offer as how it could have happened?"

"Me? no," replied Hildreth, wagging his head emphatically. "I wasn't in the house at all myself. I was out at the wood pile, splitting some maple sticks."

"But you were in the house?" rounding on Selena.

"Yes, but you don't mean to say I did it, do yer?" bristling belligerently.

"I don't say anything of the kind. I'm simply asking questions. You heard the sound of the shot?"

"Well, mebbe I did, and mebbe I didn't. Anyways, I didn't pay no 'tention to it."

"Where were you when you heard it?"

"Down in the kitchen."

"And you came right up here and found him like this?"

"No, not right up - it might have be'n five or ten minutes after."

Selena nervously twisted her hands in her apron while her inquisitor, a gray-eyed, clean-shaven, athletic appearing man about thirty years old with a scar across one cheek, kept his gaze bent on her steadily.

"You'd only left him fifteen or twenty minutes before, and he was all right then?"

"Yes."

"And nobody could have got here meanwhile without your knowing it?"

"I don't see how they coulda done it."

"H'm," gravely, "you were the last one to see him alive and the first one to find him dead - and nobody had been into this room in between."

"I don't care!" Selena's eyes flashed and she waved her arms excitedly. "I don't know who done it - and if you say I done it you're a dirty liar and a bonehead! I would no more 'a hurt Ed Batchelder than I'd cut my right hand off! He was the best friend I had," raising her apron to her eyes with a lugubrious sniffle.

One of the Selectmen, Howard Munroe, a cattle dealer who kept a stock farm and sold his milk to Pete at wholesale, now intervened.

"Selena's right, Sergeant. I know these people better than you, and I don't believe she would hurt anyone. Why don't you find the weapon that killed Ed if you think it was done by anyone here on the premises?"

"Do you know if there are any guns in the house?" asked O'Brien, who was apparently sufficiently impressed with Selena's sincerity to drop his inquisition temporarily.

"There are two in Pete's room," said Uncle Rip, nodding towards it, but apparently neither have been used recently.

"How do you know that?"

Uncle Rip explained and accompanied the Sergeant into Pete's room, where the latter examined the guns carefully and turned them over to the other trooper for safe keeping.

"Where's the man who owns these?"

"Delivering milk," replied Uncle Rip, and related the substance of his conversation with Pete over the telephone. A comical look of doubt and astonishment came into O'Brien's face.

"He's certainly a cool hand. What time did he leave the house?"

"Seven o'clock," volunteered Hildreth.

"Well I don't see, but what that lets him out, but we'll just take a look to see if he has any more artillery laying around."

A thorough search of Pete's drawers and closet unearthed nothing more in the shape of lethal weapons except a .32 calibre revolver which, like the guns, evidently had not been fired recently. O'Brien confiscated this and all the ammunition the room afforded.

"And now," he said, "I'll have to ask you people to go down stairs. We want this floor to ourselves while we look around a bit, then we may want to ask you some more questions."

Uncle Rip, Selena and Hildreth descended to the lower regions, and as the "settin' room was shut up and the dining room unused, by a natural process of elimination drifted to the kitchen.

Hildreth drew some hot water from the faucet into a galvanized iron pail half full of meal, stirred the mixture with a piece of shingle, and remarking, "Wal, the pigs have got to be fed - they ain't done nawthing," clumped out of the house.

Selena sniffed, but said nothing. With a red spot in either cheek and a glint in her eye she took some dirty dishes off the table and slatted them into the sink. Uncle Rip glanced at her, but wisely held his peace and looked about him. The kitchen still retained most of its primitive characteristics, although two electric light bulbs hung nakedly from the sloping beams of the leanto roof, and a large range, rusty in spots and not very well kept, had been substituted for the old Dutch oven and the high, shallow fireplace with its crane and roasting spit. Against the further wall was an iron sink set up on stilts and draining into a wooden trough canting away from the outside of the house. Beside this was a double-action force pump, operated by hand.

At one end of the kitchen was the woodshed. Standing beside the stove was a wood basket in which Selena generally deposited the frying pan whenever it was off duty. In Mrs. Batchelder's day things would have been different, but that was ten years ago, and Selena had now reverted to type, pre-determined by a drunken father from whom Mrs. Batchelder had taken her upon the death of a slatternly mother. The red center table was spotted and torn, the floor showed no very recent acquaintance with a broom, still less with a scrubbing brush, the old fashioned shelves and cupboards were dusty and disorderly, but these things had ceased to be of any consequence to Selena so long as Ed was not moved to complain of them. And Ed? Well, there was the old fashioned rocking chair with its leather covered cushion in which he generally sat evenings, and his old felt hat hanging on the peg beside the door, all ready for him to put on when he went out.

Uncle Rip walked over to the outer door and threw away his cigar butt. The telephone bell in the dining room rang.

"I'll answer it," he said, as Selena hesitated. The call was from Mrs. Simpson. For an hour she had been restraining her neighborly curiosity, but now nature must take its course.

"What's happened to Ed?" she asked, with a high, insistent note which demanded its toll of tragedy.

Uncle Rip briefly summarized the situation.

"Well, of a-a-all things!"

There was a gasp ending in what sounded like a faint scream. "Why, Pete never told me anything like that! He said Ed had met with an accident, but he wouldn't tell me what. I told him if there was anything we could do we'd be only too glad, but he said 'no, everything would be all right,' and went on about his business. Has he got home yet?"

Uncle Rip moved over within range of a window and craned his neck to look down the road.

"No, but I think he's coming now."

"He ought to be—he didn't have far to go after he left here. Well, I never! You say you don't know how it happened or who did it?"

Uncle Rip answered in the negative, and then continued to give monosyllabic replies to the barrage of questions which was fired at him while his attention was subconsciously fixed on what was approaching down the street.

The clonny-clop of steel shod feet came sharply off the macadam roadbed as a big white horse drew a high, covered milk wagon along at a smart trot. On the driver's seat was a figure in blue denim overalls wearing a blue cloth cap of a darker shade. Peter Batchelder glanced at the motor vehicles drawn up in his front yard, drove past the house and stopped in front of the woodshed. Uncle Rip watched him as he descended to the ground, reached into the back of his wagon, and turned towards the kitchen with a cluster of milk cans in each hand.

His overalls and jumper did not wholly conceal the fact that he had the same lean, flat-stomached, thinhipped anatomy as his brother Ed, who generally looked as if he would cut himself in two if he drew his belt any tighter than usual. But whereas Ed was swarthy, with roving black eyes which sometimes had a humorous glint in them, and a close-cropped black moustache trimmed down so that the ends overlapped the corners of his mouth, Pete was sandy and clean-shaven, with thinning hair and high cheek bones, pale greyish-blue eyes, and a tight-lipped mouth which had a hint of cruelty in it, although a second glance seemed to show that this was due to repression more than anything else. His face was devoid of emotion as he came through the woodshed into the kitchen. Then he saw Selena.

The milk cans clattered onto the floor as the two faced each other, Selena obviously arrested by something in Pete's attitude.

"So," he said, with a slight sneer, "you did it, did yer?"

VETERINARIAN TODAY TRUE PROFESSIONAL

Among the vast changes seen in the world since the turn of the century is the role played by the practice of veterinary medicine, states the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York.

No longer is the veterinarian a man who made his headquarters in the local livery stable, and whose access to drugs and medicines was restricted to a few bottles and jars that he kept on a dusty shelf or carried in the back of a buggy.

Today's veterinarian has an infinite number of drugs at his command. The shelves of his immaculate office and his small black bag contain only a small percentage of them. But his prescription pad makes available every latest discovery, all the newest in "wonder drugs," that might be of benefit to livestock or to the family pet.

Since 1863 the veterinarian

ian has had an authoritative body, the American Veterinary Medical Association, and, for most of that time, through his professional publications, a dependable source for information on the newest types of treatment, surgical procedures and drugs. The veterinarian, who specializes in small animal care and maintains a hospital—the latter as efficient and well equipped as any modern hospital for human beings—has, in addition, the American Animal Hospital Association.

The highest goals are emphasized by both national organizations and by the taste veterinary associations. They stand on guard to aid the veterinarian in protecting the nation's pets' health & safety. The high standards of today's pharmaceutical industry and federal regulations further assist the veterinarian in caring for the animals in his charge, adds the Center.

SPEAKS TO AIR RESERVE
OFFICER TRAINING CORPS

I appreciate the kind invitation that has been given to me to address this group of future Air Force leaders. This nation is fortunate to have such a group of capable, qualified and promising young men preparing themselves as future leaders in the Air Force.

Our country needs these men.

The Air Force, in supporting the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps here at the Lowell Technological Institute, gives visible proof that in this air atomic age there is an imperative need for educated leadership. After all, the struggle against Communism is primarily a battle of ideas rather than one of military strength.

In this contest for the minds of men, knowledge will always be the key. Without it, neither this country nor any segment of it will be prepared to bear its burden of leadership responsibilities.

Many of the young men here today will soon be graduating from the Institute; they will be entering the company of educated men. Many of these same young men will also accept the responsibilities and obligations that come with their successful completion of the advanced ROTC course: they will join the company of educated men.

When they enter upon active duty with the Air Force, the test of their leadership and the proof of the quality of their training here will begin. The nation is looking to them as future leaders. It is not only their responsibility but their privilege to serve this country of ours in the way for which both their academic studies and their military training has prepared them.

The Lowell Technological Institute plays a very key role in the preparation of young men as future leaders of the United States. We are aware of the rapid strides the Soviet Union is making in training of technically qualified personnel. The curriculum at the Institute is one answer to this real threat. Courses offered by "Tech" are designed to train skills so vitally needed by this country. The addition a few years ago of a course leading to a degree in electronics engineering attests to the Institute's recognition of its responsibility in providing needed skills for our economy and defense effort.

The free world is living in an age of great change. Science has developed forms of power greater than any known in history. But however great this power, it is not as great as the forces of freedom; however great the strength of our weapons, they cannot match the strength of the minds and hearts of free peoples.

We have come to accept the sombre fact that the requirements for effective military forces will remain with us for an indeterminate number of years. It is sometime difficult for us to appreciate the extent to which such a philosophy represents a basic and revolutionary change in our way of thinking. It is doubtful that in all of history there has been such fundamental shift in the basic policies of a democratic country as has occurred in this country within the past two decades.

It is easy to see why this is true. Man's conquest of air has made the American homeland vulnerable to attack and devastation in a manner that would have been inconceivable fifty years ago. When we remember that the air age has become the atomic age as well, and also that it is an era in which the techniques of economic and psychological aggression have been developed and refined to a point unprecedented in history, the proportions of this vulnerability become even more apparent. Finally, when we consider the vast human and material resources that have already been enveloped within the inflated Communist empire and visualize how the seizure of additional territories and resources, if not prevented, would add steadily to Communist capabilities for aggression, we can understand why the United States no longer can afford to be oblivious to events even in the most remote corners of the world.

Thus, today we find ourselves the center of world affairs. This nation not only has the responsibility for the security of its own people, but for entire continents and their civilization.

For all these reasons it becomes increasingly important for us to learn about the world, its people and our place in it. Only by so doing can we insure our freedom.

Enlightened knowledge, therefore, is important to our very existence, for in knowledge we have found power.

But if knowledge is power, it follows that the nature of the power derived from knowledge fundamentally rests with instincts of human leadership.

The Air Force, for instance, has many devices and weapons that can almost think for themselves. But the decision for their use remains with man. These marvels of science will be good or bad depending upon the use to which man puts them. "We must not," as Mr. Forrestal once said, "make of armaments the whipping boy for men's inability to live with man."

The need for a strong deterrent Air Force is not one of our own choosing. We as a peaceful nation would much prefer to devote our capacities to peaceful pursuits. But we have no alternative.

Ultimately, therefore, the success of our created air power will not be measured by who wins the next war should it come but rather how successful we are in maintaining the peace - uneasy as it may be.

No one can foretell how long we must bear the efforts that these precautions entail. Nor can we see how long we must endure the emotional strain of recurring crisis and alarms. But one thing is certain: it is in such groups as these that there will one day be entrusted the security of the United States. This country hopes to reap dividends from education and qualities of leadership planted during their four years at Lowell Tech.

It was President Eisenhower who stated that in the last analysis our real strength lies in the calibre of the people in the Armed Forces. The success with which the Air Force performs its mission is as dependent upon the character and forcefulness of its personnel as it is on the modernity of its equipment.

All the money spent annually on maintaining our Air Force will be to no avail unless everyone of us understands and remains dedicated to the task of providing the basic military strength to preserve this freedom of ours and fully exploits his leadership potential.

The quality of leadership is the result of many attitudes. But the two I have just mentioned - a deep rooted sense of mission and effective application of leadership skills - are perhaps the most important.

Unless you believe in the necessity of national defense, unless you believe in the effectiveness of the service of each and every man in uniform, you cannot persuade or convince others of the need for strength-in-being.

You must have other qualities, to be sure. You must have knowledge. You must have intelligence. You must have executive ability, courage, confidence, and the sense of mission I have already spoken of. You must have a sense of justice, and employ it with consistency. You must in all your dealings with your fellow men, and especially with those who serve under you, be fair and impartial. And finally, you must have the perseverance to stick to your task long after the novelty of it has worn off and the interest of the group is flagging.

There are rules of practical leadership. Most of them require for their accomplishment merely the application of common sense.

As educated men you will be expected to be able to distinguish between what you know and what you don't know - and expected to know how to admit ignorance without revealing incompetence. The professional knows how - and term "know how" has passed into the American idiom as a term of praise. A man who lacks "know how" and pretends to have it is a phony. Never pretend. Be honest in everything you do and especially in what you are.

The nation and the Air Force are looking to you as future leaders. I know that no one here will fail in this responsibility. I congratulate you on your achievements to date; I urge you to approach the future with the same dedicated spirit that you approached the past.

BABY SHOWER FOR MRS. RUSSO

Mrs. Pauline (Downs) Russo, formerly of Woburn St., now living in Woburn was the guest of honor at a baby shower held in the home of Mrs. Helen Downs on Lowell St. The affair was held on Thursday evening, May 31 with approximately 20 guests present.

Many fine gifts were received by the guest of honor, and any mother will appreciate the oddity, that among the many gifts, there was only one diaper bag.

Mrs. Russo is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Downs of Perry's Corner. She expects the stork early in June.

HOLY NAME OUTDOOR MASS

The Woburn District Holy Name Societies of which Rev. Edmund W. Croke, pastor of St. Thomas of Villanova parish is the spiritual director, will again have an outdoor mass this year. It will take place on Wednesday, June 20 at the Woburn High School field. Knowles Church Contractors will again erect a beautiful outdoor altar on the field, and Rev. John J. Lane, spiritual director of St. Charles Holy Name Society, will be in charge of altar arrangements.

Rt. Rev. Francis E. McElroy, Archdiocesan Director will lead the prayer of enthronement and will consecrate the families to the Sacred Heart. Rev. William J. Gorman, pastor of St. Joseph's church of Woburn will sing the Mass of the Sacred Heart.

Bishop Jeremiah E. Minihan D.D. Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, will be the preacher. Rev. Walter Flaherty, director of Archdiocesan Radio and Television Apostolate will be the commentator.

There will be a beautiful procession preceding the mass and afterwards, leaving the grounds. This will be composed of a Guard of Honor, officers of the various Holy Name Societies, priests and spiritual directors of the Woburn district, altar boys, firemen and policemen from each parish, the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, and the Immaculate Conception Band of Winchester, which has earned its very high reputation.

The Woburn district is composed of Bedford, Burlington, Concord, Lexington, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Winchester, Woburn and Wilmington.

With such a zealous group of men on the planning committee, under the leadership of their spiritual director, Rev. Edmund W. Croke, this year's outdoor mass gives every promise of fulfilling the high aspirations of a truly wonderful organization of men, the Holy Name Societies of the Boston Archdiocese

URANIUM WORLD WIDE

In recent years the quest for uranium has become world wide. The 1956 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia reports that evidence of deposits have been noted in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Israel, Italy, Uruguay and Spain.

The pedestrian record reflected the 5th consecutive year of improvement for motor vehicle accidents in 1955.

PLUMBING and HEATINGBEACON HILL COMMENTARY

Rep. Charles E. Wilkinson

The next Bill of major importance to come before the Legislature is the $200 million road building bond issue. Last year the Bill called for $150 million but it was defeated in the Senate by one vote. Many of the arguments used last year were that there was no provision made for the retirement of the bonds. This year the Bill will call for one cent increase in the gasoline tax to be used to retire the bonds.

This extra cent will be the fuse that will touch off the leather lungers in the House compelling the other members to have to listen to many hours of screeching and yelling that will not add one iota of sense of information to the debate.

In what other way should the bonds be paid off? Do we need roads? If so then why should not the auto user pay for them. The real estate interests have been hollering for years that real estate taxes have reached the peak and if raised any more then something terrible would happen. But they have raided consistently and as yet nothing of a direful nature has resulted.

Even so is it fair to add the interest and payments on the principal of a $200 million to the real estate taxes? It has been estimated that the one cent tax on the gasoline tax will take care of these payments.

During the past two administrations (Democrat and Republican) road building has tried to make up for the lack of foresight of previous administrations with the result of necessary expenditures of huge amounts of money. Last year the State had to set aside over 38 Millions of Dollars just to pay the interest and payments on the principal of past bonds issues. This year it will run well over $45 Millions. When the writer asked the expert in the Ways and Means Department what would happen if the $200 Millions were to be assumed by the State he said it would be the death knell of the State. Because of the failure of the bond issue last year the relocation of Route 28 had to be set aside until this year's bond issue is settled.

While on the subject of taxes it brings to mind the possibility of a state wide sales tax in the not too far future. Rep. Vaites of Melrose (he is running for Congress this year) has been trying to get such a Bill through for several years. Last year he was the only one to vote for it but this year he was joined by 20 members so he feels quite encouraged. The dear old Port Authority Bill is now before the Supreme Court for rulings on certain parts of the Bill and probably will not be back to the Senate for their final action for three or four weeks which will make it too late to help the tax situation this year. Logan Airport and the Port of Boston must be taken care of as no money had been allotted to them hoping the Port Authority Bill would be enacted before July 1st (the beginning of the fiscal year).

The budget is now before the Senate for their tender handling and the writer would be surprised if they will get through with it inside of a week.

 A wood fence has many practical and esthetic advantages especially in the suburbs, points out the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.
For instance, a wood fence can improve the appearance of property, confine dogs and small children, provide just the right degree of privacy, and even serve as a shield against the sun. Because lumber is available in so many standard sizes, the do-it-yourself league can build wood fences easily and economically in a wide range of designs.

OIL!

 Have you wondered why
this government is so vitally concerned with the turmoil in the Middle East. The Argonaut, of San Francisco, gives a major reason in this sentence: "Border disputes between Israel and the Arabs and fierce rivalry in arming between Israel and Egypt keep the Middle Eastern situation at the boiling point, but behind it all is the one big question—OIL!"

 To a very great extent the vast Middle Eastern oil reserves have been and are being developed by American capital and American oil companies—which is true of the oil of many other parts of the world. This is done with the full backing of the U.S. government, and of the British and other friendly governments. In the course of that development, enligtened policies pursued by the oil industry have given enormous benefits—in such fields as agriculture, local enter-the Middle Eastern countries.

 The free world vitally needs Middle Eastern oil—
both for its peacetime pursuits, and on behalf of its military strength and security. Russia urgently wants the oil—and will go to any length to get it. So Soviet agents and sympathizers are everlastingly busy stirring up violence and discord and attempting to undermine the free world's position.

 Oil is the lifeblood of nations. It is as potent a wea-is the over-riding fact surrounding the Middle Eastern crisis.

Quote...

We have two ears and only one tongue so that we may hear twice as much as we say.

Success...

The new Ford Agency, Wilmington Sales, Inc. on Main Street seems destined for success, if sales of new Fords are any indication. The first few weeks...and without a sales room...so to speak...the sale of Fords has exceeded all expectations.

Don't Try This Trick...

Do you like parlor tricks? Well then, try this; Soak a blotter with oil of turpentine and put it in a jar of oxygen gas. The gas will promptly burst into flames. You have no oxygen gas around the house? All right, here's a simpler trick...Take one oiled mop and put it in the closet under the stairs. If the conditions are right, your whole house will burst into flames in a couple of days. It's most impressive and in fact...is America's most popular specimen of parlor magic.

Beauty On The Highway
The Walpole Woodwork-

ers...another new Wilmington enterprise has added a beautiful touch to the roadside along Lowell Street. The strikingly modern salesroom with its patio liberally sprinkled with modern and rustic chairs and benches is an eye catching scene. This modern building, shrubbery and landscaping was designed and engineered by the president of the Walpole Woodworkers, Mr. Philip Metchalph. In charge of the Wilmington branch is Mr. Rufus Legge.

Nice Thought...

The Juniors and Seniors of the Wilmington High School have a terrific idea that they put into practice...Letters are written by these pupils, 70 or 75 in number and sent to our Honorary Mayor, Mr. George Spanos who in turn passes them along to Andy Pupa, a Wilmington High School boy who has been ill for some time at a hospital in Boston.

No Kidding...

A local man who owns a small plot of ground decided to plant a small garden. At the supper table he was discussing the advisability of soaking the vegetable seeds in water before planting them because he had heard the water would soften the hard outer shell of the seed and this in turn would hasten the growth of the plants. A short time later his wife called him in the other room to look at something and upon returning to the kitchen some time later he discovered his six year old son standing on a kitchen chair along the sink...boxes and packages of seeds...all emptied were strewn along the bench and floor. The father, more perplexed than angry asked Johnnie what he was doing with all the seeds...he had emptied the contents of the dozen or more packages into a pail of water where they were slowly being stirred by his small hands. It seems that he had been very attentive to his father's remarks while at the supper table...He liked salad, so figured the best way to plant a garden that would grow salad was to mix the seeds together in preparation for planting.

Guessing Contest...

At the Bond Shoe Store on Main Street in Woburn there is a chance for some youngster to win a beautiful English bike simply by guessing the number of kids in the store window. The contest is open to all children and there is no obligation to buy. The contest will run through the month of June.

Exclusive Dealer...

Mr. Fred Cain, local Chrysler, Dodge and Plymouth dealer has been designated as the exclusive agent for Memphian Ambulance in New England. This ambulance...so called because the factory is located in Memphis, Tenn. will put on the market, ambulances with Chrysler, Dodge, DeSoto and Plymouth chassis. Mr. Cain has enlarged his shop to include a 60x80 building to be used primarily for body work with an additional 20x30 building con-

V. F. W. DUGOUT DOINGS

Our Memorial Day observances were held last Wednesday, and despite the damped weather, the spirit of respect for our departed comrades hit a new high. The parade was well attended and hundreds of spectators lined the streets to see the boys march.

Open house was the order of the day in the local veterans posts and the children certainly took advantage of it. We noticed at least 3 groups of children drilling under the supervision of rather harassed ex-G.I.s, a portent of things to come?

Next post meeting to be held Thursday, June 14. All members are urged to attend. The bonfire situation has to be settled one way or another that night, so all you men get down and give your opinion. Hows for some more new members?

Saturday, June 16 will be our next social night, under the supervision of Al Fenton and Henry Shinnors. A good time is promised everyone and as usual the chow will be superb. Incidentally, social night is open to the public, so all you readers who don't belong, feel free to attend and meet the family.

The Cootie installation in Malden was well attended by the members of the post last Saturday night. That a good time was held by all was evident by the phone calls being made early Sunday morning. Many households were very quiet all morning that Sunday. We wonder why?

Our Poppy Drive was a huge success. Get down to the next meeting and hear the final report.

We were very happy to see such a large turn out of V.F.W. members at the town meeting last Friday. It's a good sign that we have civic interest at heart.

Congratulations to Jim Shine and Joe Simpson on their election to Commander and Senior Vice Commander respectively at the D.V.A. May your chores of duty run smooth.

Just Wondering ... How Ray Dewhurst made out with his little tinkering job last Saturday. ... If Louise DeFelice still wants to get rid of Nickie's Homberg ... If we will see Jack Madigan during jolopy racing season ... If between the 3 vets post we can get enough talent for a local band ... How many of you local young eligible V.F.W. men would like to join the club and get on our drill team ... If the American Legion soft ball team will win the pennant ... What Hal Foley and Mabel down at the Shamrock will think of next ... If we can get some clam diggers to dig some clams for a clam bake ... If Marilyn Fenton ever got that certain letter typed up ... If it is not time for me to end this column. ...

GRADUATION EXERCISES TO BE CELEBRATED AT METHODIST CHURCH

On Sunday, June 10, graduation exercises will be held for children and young people of the entire church school. At the 9:15 service, high school graduates will be honored with a graduation certificate and a gift given to them from their church. Also at this service, the young people graduating into Senior High School will be honored and the newly elected officers of the Intermediate and Senior Methodist Youth Fellowships will be installed during a ceremony led by the Rev. Mr. Harding. Attendance awards will be given those who have had perfect attendance for this past year. Miss Yolandi Moe will be soloist at this service and Harding will bring a meditation to the young people. Parents of all youth have been invited to attend this service.

At 11:00 am. the children of the pre-school Dept. and the Primary Dept. will take part in the worship service. Each group has prepared a special program for this service. Bibles will be awarded to children graduating into the 4th grade and children graduating into the 7th grade will be presented with their diplomas and membership cards into the Intermediate Methodist Youth Fellowship. William Russell, Church School Supt. will be in charge of this service, assisted by Mrs. Van Steensburg and Mrs. William Dayton.

The highlight of this service will be the assembling of the different portions of the new church model made possible by the gifts of the Each department will bring children in Sunday School. The section of the building that they have built by placing red bricks in their proper place.

At the conclusion of the service geraniums will be presented to all children in attendance.

Does Sparky Live in Our Town?

Of course you know the famous SPARKY by now! You know he is the symbol of fire prevention and, most likely, you already know some or all of his rules. But does the spirit of this nationally famous symbol really live in our town?

Does each of us know as much as we should about protecting our homes and families from fire? Do we cooperate with our Fire Department in its fire prevention programs? Are our children being fully educated to both the uses and the dangers of fire?

METHODIST CONFERENCE ADJOURNED SUNDAY,
JUNE 3

The Annual Conference of the Methodist Church for New England adjourned its meeting on Sunday, June 3 at 5 p.m. in the Centre Methodist Church in Malden, Mass. The Rev. Richard E. Harding was reappointed to serve the Wilmington Methodist Church for the coming year, and was elected to serve on the Conference Board of Education for the next four years.

Highlights of the conference include the unanimous vote to set aside the last Sunday in October as the day when each church member will give "One Day's Pay for a New Church." The Wilmington Methodist Church is one that will be greatly helped by this program.

The conference also confirmed the action of the General Conference of the Methodist held in Minneapolis last month, stating that a program of planned parenthood if undertaken in Christian Conscience is more in keeping with the will of God than no such plan.

Bishops Lord's closing message dealt with the Theme "The Whole Gospel for the Whole World," in which he stated that the gospel of Jesus Christ must be relevant to such issues as war and the color question. He concluded his sermon by saying that man must have a deeper trust in almighty God as the ruler and sustainer of the universe, and that Jesus Christ must become every man's contemporary as he faces life's problems.

SOCIALLY YOURS WITH BEA MCCORMACK

Hi, You-All! Not a Southerner, but wish we were, especially after marching a couple of miles, in a cold downpour, with a group of cold Girl Scouts. With all due respect to the day, one would wish to see a pleasant Memorial Day. There is so much that we could accomplish. Either, it rains, or it is so desperately hot, everyone takes refuge at the beaches. One would suppose that it definitely is not a day for pleasure. And Mother Nature sees that we keep it that way. The band was something to listen to, this year. The brilliance of their uniforms couldn't be dimmed, even by the rain. We wonder if every mother listens to the band as this one does; To this mother, that Band consists of just one boy, one small boy, beating a big drum. We voiced our sentiments to another mother close by, and she answered: "Oh, no! That band is one boy playing a trombone!" We gathered that her son was in there, somewhere, also.

The "Eats" at the High School "Caf" were something, too. They were on a little higher standard this year. Ham sandwiches, served with some of Poole's bakery rolls, pop, ice cream, and cookies. Just one improvement they could make, tho'. That is, the rolls always seem to run out before the meat, or the ham is gone, and those poor girls have extra rolls to dispose of. Couldn't the count be more accurate? American Legion did the honors, this year, that is what we mean. They were on a high standard. Our Town organizations are not large, but, when it comes to getting together in one common cause, they never fail.

Sitting in at one of the Parade Committee meetings of a previous year, we had a chance to get an inside idea of how a parade is put together. Everyone is there, rooting for his or her favorite unit, to be given the proper attention. One thing that we remember especially, is the elderly man, who had no pet project But did want to see those little girls marching: "You know; those little girls with the brown dresses, and those beanies..." We agree, those little brownies steal the show. We hope that the old gentleman saw them this year.

A NEW SON

To the late Lt. (J.G.) and Mrs. William Buck, a baby son was born, at Murphy General Hospital, Waltham. His arrival was on Saturday, the 19th of May, and he has been named James Scott. There is one other child, a son, William Richard, eighteen months old. Mrs. Buck is the former Ann Bertwell, and grandparents honors are shared by Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Bertwell, of Chestnut St., and Mrs. Roger Buck, of Church St.

WILMINGTON'S MIRACLE IN THE RAIN

Returning from the parade, on Memorial Day, we saw the gathering in front of St. Dorothy's Hall in the Grove. They were somewhat be-draggled parents, waiting for the May procession to start. It was drizzling, miserably. A little boy stepped out of the church door, a small woolly lamb in his arms. He was in white, and he looked towards the sky, expecting to get pelted by rain drops. He blinked, and looked up again. Something had happened to the raindrops, for they were not there. The sun was making a feeble attempt to come out, as the little girls came, two by two in their white dresses, to join the procession. In the center of the group there was a Nun. She turned her face serenely toward the sky as she walked along; She had a private understanding with somebody up there, and it just wasn't going to rain while her children marched, in their veneration of Him and His Blessed Mother. And so, such is the stuff on which we build our Faith.

WILMINGTON POLICE
DEPT. COMMENDED FOR COURTESY

The following is a letter received by Mr. Courtney from William Betts, Police Comm. Wayne Township Police Dept., New Jersey.

Joseph F. Courtney
Town Manager
Town Hall, Wilmington,
Mass.

Dear Sir:

I am taking the liberty informing you that recently two of our police officers, had the occasion to go from Wayne Township, N.J. to Wilmington, Mass., and pick up and return to Wayne twsp., N.J. two fugitives from justice.

The two men in question had burglarized a home in Wayne, and subsequent investigation led our police officers to contact your chief of police, Paul Lynch and inform him that the two men were headed for Wilmington, and requested that they pick them up and hold them for us.

The two men were promptly arrested in Wilmington, and Capt. W. Taylor and Sergeant T. Robertello were sent to Wilmington and through the splendid cooperation of Chief Paul Lynch, the two men were brought back to N.J.

Capt. Taylor of our dept. has informed me that while he was in Wilmington, he was treated with the utmost courtesy and respect, and that in all of his 26 years of service, the cooperation that was received from your dept. was superb.

I sincerely hope that in the near future, we may have an occasion to return this splendid cooperation and courtesy.

Very truly yours,
William Betts
Police Comm.
Wayne Township Police Dept.
New Jersey.

ANOTHER WHIST FOR ST.
DOROTHY'S

On Friday evening, the eighth, there will be another of those whist parties, which seem to find such favor in the community. The committee this week will consist of Mrs. Nell O'Reilly, Mrs. Helen Elliott, Mrs. Helen Casey, Mrs. Mary Pitman, Mrs. Mary Hillson, and headed by Mrs. Beatrice McCormack.

The prizes, we expect, will be various and lovely, and the ladies are on their toes, and striving to bring about the usual success, in the way of a pleasant evening for all.

FUTURE SUBMARINE

The atomic submarine of the future would carry high-speed atomic torpedoes for attacking enemy convoys, according to the 1956 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia. The submarine would also be capable of launching atomic missiles against targets at sea or in the enemy's homeland.

NORWAY ON BYRD BAY

Plans are under way by Norway to establish a 14-man base on the Antarctic coast, in the vicinity of the prime meridian. The American Peoples Encyclopedia's 1956 Yearbook reports the base should be completed, by late in 1956. Admiral Byrd Bay, discovered in 1955, is being considered as a possible site.

TROOP EXODUS

The biggest and longest troop airlift in history took place last year, reports the 1956 Yearbook of The American Peoples Encyclopedia. It was called "Gyroscope," a joint Air Force-Army operation in which 4,000 troops were moved from the United States to Japan, relieving 3,100 men who were flown back. Giant Douglas C-124 Globemasters were used in the move.

Eighty-five per cent of the vehicles involved in accidents were passenger cars.

The longevity of wood must be measured in thousand of years, reports the National Lumber Manufacturers Association. Wood models and figurines 6,000 years old have been found by archeologists in the tombs of ancient Egypt. In fact, glued wood panels were interred with the body of King Tut, according to archeological discoveries. Most historians agree that the oldest wooden building in the world today is the 1,349-year-old Horyuji Temple at Kyoto, Japan.
